

LICENSING THE REVISED GRAIL PSALMS

4/28/09

[The Revised Grail Psalms are herein referred to as the “Text”
Please note that the Revised Grail Psalms may not be released until they receive a recognitio from the Vatican.]

Dioceses

Free Use for Which Written Permission Is Not Required

Dioceses may reprint the Text as needed for diocesan celebrations and events without obtaining written permission. Note, however, that if a psalm is the text for a published musical setting, permission must be obtained from the copyright holder of the music, who is authorized to grant permission for that combination of text and music.

All Other Uses

Written permission is required for all other uses, including, but not limited to, permanent or semipermanent reprints of the Text. Licenses may be granted on a gratis basis, or standard royalties may apply, depending upon individual circumstances.

Parishes and other Ecclesial Communities

Free Use for Which Written Permission Is Not Required

Parishes and other Ecclesial Communities may reprint the Text as needed for celebrations within the specific community without obtaining written permission. Note, however, that if a psalm is the text for a published musical setting, permission must be obtained from the copyright holder of the music, who is authorized to grant permission for that combination of text and music. If an unpublished musical setting is composed for the use of a particular community, see the conditions specified under “Composers.”

All Other Uses

Written permission is required for all other uses, including, but not limited to, permanent or semipermanent reprints of the Text. Licenses may be granted on a gratis basis, or standard royalties may apply, depending upon individual circumstances. Those entities holding a current license from OneLicense.net may use the Text in accordance with the conditions of that license.

Composers

Composers are free to set the Text at will, and may use their settings indefinitely within their own ecclesial communities, provided that no revenue is derived from such use. If any fees are attached to the sharing of a composer’s work, standard royalties will apply.

Composers are free to submit settings of the Text to any publisher of their choosing. If that publisher chooses to accept the work, standard music industry procedures apply.

Commercial Publication

All legitimate publishers of religious materials, regardless of size, denominational affiliation, or for-profit/non-profit status, are equally eligible to obtain licensing for any use that is consistent with the nature and intent of the Text. Standard publishing industry procedures and royalties apply, including any publishing conditions required by ecclesiastical authorities.

Internet Access

The Revised Grail Psalms are available at www.giamusic.com/RGP. For websites of a religious or devotional nature that wish to include parts of the Text in their content, a link to the RGP website must be attached. Each of the psalms is on a separate link; devotional sites may conveniently link to whichever, and as many, psalms as they choose. For any site that operates on a subscription basis or charges fees, appropriate royalties will apply.
